Preface

This Workbook consists of exercises to accompany Fundamentals of English Grammar (2nd edition), a developmental skills text for mid-level ESL/EFL students. The exercises are designated SELFSTUDY (answers given) or GUIDED STUDY (answers not given). The SELFSTUDY practices are intended for students to use independently. The answers are in a separate, detachable Answer Key booklet at the back of this book. The GUIDED STUDY practices may be selected by the teacher for additional classwork, homework, or individualized instruction. Answers to the GUIDED STUDY practices, as well as suggestions for using the Workbook, can be found in the Teacher's Guide.

Many of the initial practices in each unit are tightly controlled and deliberate, intended to clarify form and meaning. Control is then loosened as the manipulative and clarifying practices lead to others that promote free, creative use of the target structures. The Workbook also contains suggestions for writing and various group activities such as games and discussions.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am grateful to the many people who enable me to pursue the work I love. I am especially indebted to my husband, mainstay, and co-author, Don, who kept me afloat through the recent illness and loss of my much loved mother and provided the support system in which our work together could continue and prosper.

I am also greatly indebted to Shelley Hartle, our editorial assistant, without whom it would have been impossible to keep to production schedule. Though still new to the team, she adapted quickly and handled everything with aplomb, from proofing galleys and compiling indexes to tending the ducks when we had to be away.

Many thanks to Janet Johnston, our production editor, who kept everything running smoothly on her end and was wonderfully supportive and understanding. Thanks similarly go to Sylvia Moore, managing editor. Special thanks also go to Tina Carver, publisher, who has been consistently supportive not only as a friend but as a top-notch publishing professional whose sound judgment I highly respect.

My appreciation goes, too, to Ray Adame, Barbara Barysh, Nancy Baxer, Eric Bredenberg, Karen Chiang, Athena Foley, Norman Harris, Terry Jennings, Gordon Johnson, Ray Keating, Andy Martin, Don Martinetti, Gil Muller, Ed Perez, Jack Ross, Jerry Smith, and Ed Stanford. In addition, my gratitude goes to Joy Edwards, Barbara Matthies, and R.T. Steltz. Chelsea Azar has been splendid. Finally, I am lovingly grateful to my father for his continuing support and involvement in my endeavors. Many of his ideas and suggestions are reflected in the text.

BETTY SCHRAMPFER AZAR

Once again, I begin by expressing my gratitude to Betty for her continued patience and guidance, and for the same incredible expertise that she brings to all phases of this project. Much of this was accomplished during a difficult time. Her ability and persistence got the book out. I continue to marvel and to learn.

I want to thank my father-in-law, Bill Schramper, for numerous handwritten ideas for topics and sentences. His agile mind provided much fodder. Inspiration appeared from many sources, R.T. Steltz, Tom Hembra, and my uncle Elias George among them, as well as Fred Lockyear, Gary Althen and other colleagues whose brains I often pick without knowing why until I start putting sentences down.

And special thanks still go to Chelsea Azar. She continues to endure our commitment to these projects and always provides joy and support.

DONALD A. AZAR

◇ PRACTICE 31—GUIDED STUDY: Cumulative review. (Chapter 5)

Directions: Following is a passage for you to read. The topic is the process of writing a composition. Read the passage through completely to get the main ideas. Then read it again slowly and choose from the words in italics. Which completions seem best to you? Why? Discuss your choices.

Writing a Composition

- (1) “What? Not another composition! I hate writing compositions. I’m not good at it.” Do you ever complain about having to write compositions in English class? A lot of students do. You may, cannot find it difficult and time-consuming, but you are learning a useful skill. The ability to write clearly is, must be important. It can, must affect your success in school and in your job. You may, can learn to write effectively by practicing. Preparing compositions is one of the best ways to learn the skill of writing clearly.
- (2) The first step in writing a composition is to choose a subject that interests you. You maybe, should write about a subject you already know about or can, have to find out about through research. Writers might, should never pretend to be experts. For example, if you have never bought a car and are not knowledgeable about automobiles, you should, should not choose to write an essay on what to look for when buying a used car—unless, of course, you plan to research the subject in books and magazines and make yourself an expert. There is one topic about which you are the most knowledgeable expert in the world, and that topic is, will be yourself and your experiences. Many of the most interesting and informative compositions are based simply on a writer’s personal experience and observations. The questions you should ask yourself when choosing a topic are “Do I have any expertise in this subject?” and if not, “Will, Can I be able to find information about this subject?”
- (3) After you have a topic and have researched it if necessary, start writing down your thoughts. These notes must not, do not have to be in any particular order. You do not have to, could not worry about grammar at this time. You can, may pay special attention to that later.

- (4) Next you have to, may organize your thoughts. You cannot, might not say everything possible about a subject in one composition. Therefore, you may, must carefully choose the ideas and information you want to include. Look over your notes, think hard about your topic, and find a central idea. Answer these questions: “What am, do I want my readers to understand? What is, does my main idea? How can, must I put this idea into one sentence?” Good writing depends on clear thinking. Writers should, should not spend more time thinking than actually writing. After you have a clearly formed main idea, choose relevant information from your notes to include in your composition.
- (5) Before you begin to write the actual composition, you ought to, can know exactly what you want to say and how you are going to develop your ideas. Many good writers prepare, prepared an outline before they start. An outline is like a road map to keep you headed toward your destination without getting lost or sidetracked.
- (6) There are, ought to be many ways to begin a composition. For example, you might, must begin with a story that leads up to your main idea. Or you may, ought to start with a question that you want your reader to think about and then suggest an answer. Maybe, May be you could, have to introduce your topic by defining a key word. Simply presenting interesting factual information is, will be another common way of beginning a composition. Your goals in your first paragraph is, are to catch your reader’s attention and then state your main idea clearly and concisely. By the end of the first paragraph, your reader may, should understand what you are going to cover in the composition.
- (7) If possible, write the entire first draft of your composition in a single sitting. After you have a first draft, the next step is rewriting. Every composition could, should go through several drafts. Rewriting is a natural part of the process of writing. You will, do not have to find many things that you can change, changed and improve when you reread your first draft. As you revise, you will, should be careful to include connecting words such as then, next, for example, after, and therefore. These words connect one idea to another so that your reader will not get lost. Also pay attention to grammar, punctuation, and spelling as you revise and rewrite. Your dictionary should, can be next to you.
- (8) Writing is, may be a skill. It improves as you gain experience with the process of choosing a subject, jotting down thoughts, organizing them into a first draft, and then rewriting and polishing. At the end of this process, you should, should not have a clear and well-written composition.

He felt homesick for people who were like him in their customs and habits. But as time went on, he began to appreciate the way of life that his host family followed. Many of the things Hiroki did with his host family began to feel natural to him. He developed a strong bond of friendship with them. These irrational fears are the source of much of the violence that has occurred throughout the history of the world.

◇ PRACTICE 32—GUIDED STUDY: Adjective clauses. (Charts 12-1 → 12-7)

Directions: Find and underline the ADJECTIVE CLAUSES in the following passage. Circle the NOUN that each adjective clause modifies.

Parents are people who provide love, care, and education for children. Parents may be defined as the principal people who raise a child. These people may or may not have physically produced the child. Many children are brought up by relatives or other caring adults when their biological parents, through death, disability or uncontrollable circumstances, are not present to care for them. The role of any parents, biological or not, is to take care of their children's emotional, physical, and social needs.

Children need love and affection to grow strong emotionally. It is important for all children to have at least one adult with whom they can form a loving, trusting relationship. A strong bond with adults is essential from birth through adolescence. For example, babies who are not picked up frequently and held lovingly may have slow physical and mental growth even though they receive adequate food and exercise. Youngsters who are raised in an institution without bonding with an older person who functions as a parent may often have difficulty forming trusting relationships when they are adults.

In addition to love, children need physical care. Babies are completely dependent upon adults for food, shelter, and safety. Children who are denied such basics in their early lives may suffer chronic health problems and feelings of insecurity throughout their lifetimes. One of the greatest responsibilities that parents have is to provide for the physical well-being of their children.

Children's education is also the responsibility of the parents. Girls and boys must learn to speak, dress themselves, eat properly, and get along with others. They must learn not to touch fire, to look carefully before they cross the street, and not to use violence to solve problems. The lessons that parents teach their children are numerous. As children get older and enter school, teachers join parents in providing the education that young people need in order to become independent, productive members of society.

By counting the number of ads for lost pets, he expects to be able to predict when an earthquake will occur.
